This report describes changes to the Fund that occurred during the reporting period.

What were the Fund costs for the last year?

(Based on a hypothetical $10,000 investment)

	Costs of a $10,000 investment	Costs paid as a percentage of a $10,000 investment
Class C	$181	1.77%

Gross expense ratio as of the latest prospectus: 1.76%. See prospectus for any contractual or voluntary waivers; without a waiver, costs would have been higher.

How did the Fund perform last year and what affected its performance?

Class C shares of the Fund returned 4.96% (unadjusted for sales charges) for the period ended September 30, 2026. The Fund's broad-based index, the Russell 1000® Index, returned 15.01% for the same period, while the Fund's additional, more narrowly based index, the Russell 1000® Growth Index, returned 7.50%.

Stock selection in the health care sector was the primary reason for the Fund's underperformance relative to the Russell 1000 Growth Index. An underweight in Eli Lilly & Co. (2.1%) detracted, as did overweights in the medical equipment companies Boston Scientific Corp.,* Insulet Corp.,* and Stryker Corp. (0.5%). However, a position in Exact Sciences Corp.* — which was taken over at a premium — offset some of the shortfall. The communication services sector was another area of weakness. Shares of Roblox, Inc.* slid due to the combination of legal difficulties, slowing growth, and analyst downgrades, and Spotify Technology SA (1.3%) came under pressure from rising costs and concerns about its litigation exposure. Positioning in the real estate sector was an additional headwind for relative performance, primarily as a result of a downturn in CoStar Group, Inc.*

On the plus side, the Fund outperformed in the consumer discretionary sector. An underweight in Tesla, Inc. (1.1%), which lost ground in the annual period, made the largest contribution. An overweight in the appliance maker SharkNinja, Inc. (1.1%) was a further contributor of note. The shares rose on the strength of a series of better-than-expected earnings reports and upbeat guidance. Information technology was another area of positive relative performance, thanks largely to positions in a number of semiconductor/memory stocks that benefited from rising demand fueled by the AI infrastructure buildout. Marvell Technology, Inc. (2.0%), Applied Materials, Inc. (1.9%), Micron Technology, Inc. (0.8%), and Analog Devices, Inc. (1.4%), among others, were key contributors. The Fund was also helped by holdings outside of technology that performed well due to their role in developing AI infrastructure, including Bloom Energy Corp. (0.8%) and Caterpillar, Inc.* With this said, the Fund's underweights in certain other stocks that rallied on AI enthusiasm, particularly Advanced Micro Devices, Inc. (0.5%), detracted.

Percentages in parentheses are based on the Fund's net assets as of September 30, 2026.

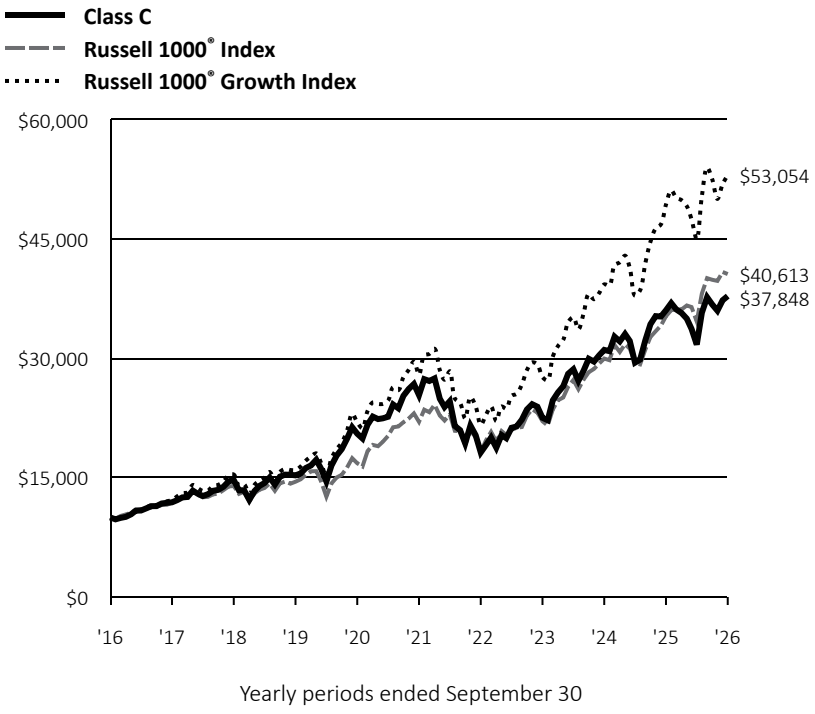
Fund Performance

Cumulative Growth of an Assumed $10,000 Investment



Yearly periods ended September 30

Russell 1000® Index measures the performance of the large-cap segment of the US equity universe. It is a subset of the Russell 3000® Index and includes approximately 1,000 of the largest securities based on a combination of their market cap and current index membership. The Russell 1000 represents approximately 93% of the US market. The Russell 1000® Index is constructed to provide a comprehensive and unbiased barometer for the large-cap segment and is completely reconstituted annually to ensure new and growing equities are included.

The Russell 1000® Index is a required broad-based index that represents the fund's overall equity market.

Russell 1000® Growth Index measures the performance of the large cap growth segment of the US equity universe. It includes those Russell 1000 companies with relatively higher price-to-book ratios, higher I/B/E/S forecast medium term (2 year) growth and higher sales per share historical growth (5 years). The Russell 1000® Growth Index is constructed to provide a comprehensive and unbiased barometer for the large-cap growth segment. The index is completely reconstituted annually to ensure new and growing equities are included and that the represented companies continue to reflect growth characteristics.

The Russell 1000® Growth Index is a more narrowly based index that the Advisor believes more closely aligns with the Fund's investment strategy.

Index returns do not reflect any fees or expenses and it is not possible to invest directly into an index.
